DENTISTRY.

A good blacksmith would make a poor dentist, and a man may be a very good dentist in certain kinds of work and poor in others. It is not possible for him to be equally expert in all branches of so complex an art; for there is as much difference between operative and mechanical dentistry as between extracting a tooth and shoeing a horse.

Every member of our association does what he can do best and at the same time nothing else.

We have a man for each branch, and that is the great advantage of an association over the ordinary mode of practice.

Extracting, 25 cents; with gas or zinc, 50 cents; cleaning, 75 cents. Silver filling, 75 cents. Gold crowns, 25c. at.

Has Hugged Many Women.

Residents of the annexed district say the prettiest girls in all the city live up there. That is probably the reason that more than twenty of them have been hugged and kissed during the last two weeks in the streets by an unknown man who has thus far managed to keep clear of the police and a regiment of angry sweethearts, husbands, and fathers.

They call the stranger "Jack, the Hugging." of course. He is probably the same person who on Wednesday last assailed Mrs. George Bower and Miss Ella Poynton in east 17th street. He was beaten off by the fierce defiance of the younger woman, who vigorously beat him over the head and shoulders with a stick.

But all the girls in the annexed district haven't the nerve of Miss Poynton, and even if they were supplied with clubs it is probable that when the hugging appeared they would forget to use their weapons and scream just as women did who have gone through the trying experience.

Folks across the Harle river describe the man as an "invincible goblin-like fellow who dispenses his kisses with prodigious extravagance and keeps the good women of the district in a perpetual state of nerve-shattering anxiety when they walk the streets at night." This is sufficient to show just how folks are wrought up over "Jack's" depredations.

Most of the thoroughfares are lighted by electricity, but the trees which in a great many places line either side of the street obscure the light, leaving the ways in darkness. "Jack" has operated largely in Brook avenue, which is only partially built up. His greatest successes have been achieved there.

Annie Conway won't take that route at night again unless she has her beam with her. She is plump, pretty and lives in 15th street, near the Southern Boulevard. She was returning home about eleven o'clock one night recently and did not see "Jack" standing in a hallway in Brook avenue, near 15th street.

She passed down the avenue at a brisk walk and when she reached a dark spot in the avenue she was startled to find a muscular arm quickly encircle her waist. She was too frightened to speak. The man kissed her on her cheek.

"Oh, how lovely!" he exclaimed.

His appreciation caused him to kiss her again and again, and he hugged her so heartily that she nearly fainted. She soon found her voice, however, and called it into use while she plied her finger nails against the hugger.

Two men heard her cries and ran to her assistance, and "Jack" ran through a lot in the direction of St. Ann's avenue and escaped.

"And he wasn't at all good looking," said Miss Conway, in recounting the adventure a few days afterward.

Miss Hettie Zurich, of 13th street and Willis avenue, had a similar experience a night or so later. She had been visiting friends in Wilton avenue and started to return home about nine o'clock.

She took a short cut through Brook avenue and in crossing 13th street saw something emerge from behind a big rock on the corner and almost immediately disappear. She thought it was caused by a flicker of the electric light and paid no attention to it. Miss Zurich passed the rock and hearing a slight noise behind her started to turn. Then, according to folks who have told and retold the story, "a tall, poorly dressed man with a dark mustache sprang at her like a tiger."

Miss Zurich has never had any experience with tigers, but did say, "Well, what's the matter with you?" as the man's arm went around her waist. He didn't answer but kissed her, and she shrieked. She fought desperately too, and "Jack's" face must be a scroll work of scratches. He wasn't in the least disconcerted, and continued to kiss her until a policeman came into view. Then he fled.

Many persons think that "Jack" is crazy, but these are in the main part old bachelors and dyspeptic cynics. The police express no opinion, but are keeping a keen watch for the "goblin-like fellow."—N. Y. Herald.
